FINANCE AND TRADE. OUR REVIEW of the cotton market last week quoted middling cotton in New York at 16 c, at which figure it remained the whole week, as it had done the week previous. New Orleans quoted 15 c, which on Friday declined 15 c. Liverpool quoted 7id throughout the for the week ending Friday last: week. Memphis quoted 15tc, but on Friday fell to 15c. The changes of the week were a decline of ic in New Orleans, and to in Memphis. We see by this statement that cotton has been very steady during the week under review; what changes have taken place have been to lower figures. The condition of the growing crops is now the principal factor in the considerations that govern prices, and accounts of that condition are eminently satisfactory. The weather during the week has been showery, and rain was precisely what the planters wanted. In our market the inquiry has been mostly for good cottons; holders are generally anxious to sell, but still eserve a reasonable confidence in rices, and expect a decided improvement in the market before the business part of the season closes. Heaviness in the dry goods market, and reductions in the prices of cotton goods is justly regarded as an unfavorable symptom. The Liverpool Cotton Report of May 7th, of W. C. Watts & Co., says, that with large imports of cotton the demand rarely exceeded retail proportions. Holders are oubting whether it will pay to retain the visible supply for all Europe is now one hundred and thirty-seven thousand bales less than last year at this date, and It is not improbable the deficit may be in the considerably increased in the next two or three months, but we have no positive assurance there will be any actual scarcity of cotton, and even if there should be, it will be only for a few weeks in October or November next, when abundant supplies from the new American crop will be close at hand. oreover, it is almost invariably the case that holders desire to close up their old season's business before the new season commences, and hence the demand is likely to be very freely supplied, as for months past, and under such circumstances, almost the only chance to bring about such an improvement as would cover the expense of holding, would have to result from a speculative de-mand growing out of unfavorable crop
